Ports of Los Angeles & Long Beach Container Excess Dwell Fee - UPDATEDear Valued ONE Customers,

As a follow up to our previous Customer Advisories regarding the Ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach. The Port of Los Angeles and the Port of Long Beach announced today a further postponement of the "Container Excess Dwell Fee". After meetings today with U.S. Port Envoy John Porcari, ocean liner companies and marine terminal operators, the two ports said the fee will not be considered prior to December 6th, 2021.

Ocean Network Express (North America) Inc. is providing the following guidance to help our customers in this new government issued implementation:

1. Who is assessing this fee?

The Port Authority Los Angeles & Long Beach will be assessing this fee.

2. How will I be billed? UPDATED

Effective December 6th, 2021, Ocean Network Express will utilize the eModal payment portal to support the payment of "Container Excess Dwell Fee" (EDF) invoice prior to container release from the ocean terminal. The single exception will be Total Terminals International aka TTI who intend to collect this fee directly.

3. Will containers on terminal prior to 11/15 be billed? UPDATED

It remains unclear from the Port Authority announcement if the charge, as previously advised, will in fact commence from 11/15 OR is being reset to 12/6. We are seeking further clarification on this point, and we will provide an update when this is validated.

Under the prior notice, Import containers on terminals as of 11/15 dwelling for more than 8 days will be counted as 9 days dwell in regards to the excess dwell fee. The charge will continue accumulating until picked up. All containers on terminals as of 11/15 will be counted from their date of discharge per the table of charges in this advisory. There is no maximum fee that will be applied and will continue to accrue until the container is off terminal.

4. Cargo booked to an inland rail location?

If a container set for inland rail accrues excess dwell fees due to rail delays, the Port Authority will still impose the fee to carriers. Ocean Network Express at this time will not pass along to customers.

5. Are there any exemptions to the fee?

Containers on hold for Customs Exam are subject to the fee. Local store door truck moves will also fall within chargeable items under this fee. Lack of chassis will not exempt the fee. "No new surcharge" clauses in contracts do not exempt this fee as it's a government mandated fee.

6. Cargo is inaccessible at the terminal?

If cargo is in a “closed or unavailable” area, we strongly encourage customers and truckers who are unable to collect containers to follow the terminal's “unavailable container process”.

7. Terminal has no pickup times available?

There are many appointments available and unused, please check terminal websites for availability.
