

Here's a rotation update for our WAX service - North Europe and West Africa connected with faster transit times

If you are shipping from the North of Europe and West Africa, and vice-versa, here's an update to boost your cargo planning between these two geographies.

Our West Africa Express (WAX) service is changing its rotation by adding a call at Le Havre, France. This shift will provide you with the opportunity of a direct product with a fast transit-time to Tema, Ghana and Abidjan, Ivory Coast, both for France and Benelux. In addition, the Le Havre call in this service will expand your supply chain network between this port and other origins and destinations worldwide.

For your cargo planning and convenience, our WAX service will be using the port of Tangier in Morocco as the key connection point for North European and West African markets. In addition to being the main gateway for the Le Havre call, Tangier will ensure the Hamburg connection to West Africa through alternative Hapag-Lloyd services, and support the Casablanca import and export markets.
